San Diego Rental Home: Selling From Out of Town

Every step for selling a rented San Diego home from another city or state, including tenant and entitlement items.

People, contacts and check-ins

- [ ] Set a standing check-in on video at an hour that suits both time zones, and choose text, email or calls for news.
- [ ] Pass along your HOA manager's details plus any gate, parking or pool rules.
- [ ] Outside the U.S.: Find out from escrow, well ahead, what identification you need and how documents get to you overseas.
- [ ] Military: Talk with the legal assistance office on base about a power of attorney ahead of time, and let escrow know if one will be used.
- [ ] If you can't travel: Thinking of letting a trusted person sign? Speak with an attorney about it, and clear it with the title company before anyone signs.

Access, keys and house details

- [ ] Gather and count all the keys: doors, garage openers, mailbox, gate fobs, pool.
- [ ] No keys nearby: Settle where the keys need to end up, then pick tracked overnight shipping, a courier or someone you trust.
- [ ] Neighbor or relative: Settle with whoever holds a spare set who opens up for vendors.
- [ ] Property manager: Settle with your manager who books vendors and showings.
- [ ] List the house basics: alarm code, Wi-Fi, main water valve, sprinkler clock and collection day.
- [ ] Empty home: Leave electricity, water and gas running through the closing date.
- [ ] Empty home: Let your insurance company know nobody is living there, and ask how that affects the policy.
- [ ] Rented: Once your tenant agrees, pass along their contact details; showings need written notice, and Civil Code 1954 presumes 24 hours is reasonable.
- [ ] Rented: Choose between selling with the tenant staying or waiting for the lease to end, and pull together the lease and deposit paperwork.
- [ ] Someone living there: Settle a showing schedule, a quick tidy-up habit and a move-out day with the person living there.

Prep work handled from afar

- [ ] Tour the house room by room over live video, then settle on a brief to-do list.
- [ ] Get every quote approved by you in writing first, and decide how each bill is paid.
- [ ] Book a handyman to test smoke and carbon monoxide alarms and look at the water-heater straps.
- [ ] Empty home: Pick a look for the empty rooms: rental furniture, labeled virtual staging with originals on hand, or simply spotless.
- [ ] Things still inside: Clear surfaces, clean top to bottom, and pack what is moving to your new place.

- [ ] Rented: Schedule photos and showings with your tenant's routine in mind.
- [ ] Put permits, warranties, HOA documents and receipts in a single digital folder.
- [ ] If you travel back: If a trip is possible, use it well: before the photos, or for the final pack-out.

Forms and signatures, wherever you live

- [ ] Read the listing paperwork and disclosures, ask your questions, then e-sign them.
- [ ] Confirm with escrow which papers you can e-sign and how the deed gets notarized.
- [ ] In the U.S.: Find a mobile notary, or a notary office close to where you live now.
- [ ] Outside the U.S.: Plan on a U.S. embassy or consulate notary, or a local notary, and sort out how originals travel back.
- [ ] Military: Check whether a notary at a military legal office can handle the deed.
- [ ] Had the homeowners' exemption? Let the County Assessor know you moved.
- [ ] Talk with a tax professional ahead of closing about the gain exclusion and California's real estate withholding.
- [ ] VA loan: Selling a home with a VA loan? After closing, look into restoring your entitlement.

The last days before closing

- [ ] Schedule the signing a few days ahead of closing, and return documents exactly as escrow instructs.
- [ ] Have utilities move or end on closing day, and not before.
- [ ] Arrange for the keys, openers and manuals to reach the buyer.
- [ ] Forward your mail through USPS, and save the closing statement for tax time.
- [ ] Rented: Check with escrow on how the tenant's deposit and lease carry over.
